

Project Summary

John Albers

University of Wisconsin-Madison

John Albers is working with Jim Crutchfield and colleagues on groups of reinforcement-learning agents using replicator equations that describe the dynamics of multiagent systems. He is studying the group's current code for multiagent systems to understand the dynamics of the results. He will then code some of the tools necessary to quantify the cooperation and learning between agents (i.e. studying the computational mechanics of the project).